The only thing I didn't like about the course was that I feel like, if pressed, we could have hammered out an experiment every week. I feel like my group members lowish motivation in turn made me less motivated.

Some parts of the structure of the class felt a little unclear near midterms, but overall the variety of topics we engaged in and ways we learned was awesome, and the continuity of working on our individual task was a good back bone to the task.

This course was extremely valuable to me as a psychology major, especially while simultaneously doing senior project. ☺

~~I had trouble filling up 3 hours of lab work a week. ~~For the~~ Maybe somehow have more projects~~ Ignore that. Too messy. Class was great.

This was a wonderful class and I really feel I have obtained a lot of very important skills that I will utilize for the rest of my career. The topics were challenging but taught in a very comprehensive way.

COURSE DID NOT HAVE ENOUGH STRUCTURE
 GOALS WERE TOO BROAD + ~~was~~ DIFFICULT TO ACHIEVE BY END OF SEMESTER
 - really amazing experience, though, working in lab-type setting - wish there was more organization so we would actually be able to run experiment

Amy remains my favorite teacher in the psych department.

Wheeee

I think amy is probably the gold standard for teaching. She really worked hard to tailor the class to our needs while pushing us outside our comfort zones. She's knowledgeable, clear + able to get us as excited as she is about her research.

Amy is the best! Very challenging but ~~was~~ always there for support whenever it's needed. She is amazingly smart and ^{was} always coming up with interesting topics and questions to promote discussion in and out of class.

Amy made anorexia fun. On a serious note, I loved the class & always came excited to discuss the paper/group projects & get her feedback.

Amy is hands down my favourite college teacher we've had. She is so smart and is able to provide very valuable insight into material that is not easy to understand. I have really valued my time as her student.
